

KIRO HEROES

Here's Kiro Hero Greyson, who was ready to meet the challenge.

For the first two years of Greyson's life his dad and I constantly wondered what could possibly be making him so irritable. From birth, he was what we considered a fussy baby. We always contributed it to something, i.e. colic, teething, growing, common colds, etc. After his first birthday, we became more concerned about his irritable and strong willed behavior. His pediatrician assured us that he was developing normally and his tantrums were beneficial to his development. While we understood this was probably true, there was something in the back of our minds that was saying he is trying to tell us something, we just don't know what it is or how to help him feel more comfortable.

At 14 months he suffered his first febrile seizure, which we learned was caused by a spiked fever due to a virus. Luckily, his health quickly returned to normal, but his strong willed personality pursued. While we knew nothing was developmentally wrong, we still had unanswered questions for his constant crying and inability to focus or even enjoy playing. Just after his 2nd birthday, he suffered his 2nd febrile seizure. This time, being caused by a high fever due to an ear infection. With nothing actually being "wrong" with Greyson, we had hoped he would outgrow whatever was causing his moodiness, ear infections, rattled breathing (which his pediatrician classified as the early onset of asthma), seizures and fevers. Shortly after his 2nd birthday, I scheduled an appointment for myself with Dr. D. After attending the initial presentation, I was in awe of what I had learned about chiropractic care. I immediately knew that I needed to schedule an appointment for Greyson as soon as possible. I reviewed the pediatric forms and was shocked that Greyson had most of the symptoms listed, including ear infections, fevers, seizures, colic, etc. I hoped this was a good sign that chiropractic care could help him feel his best!

We went in for the initial scan and found some true problem areas that explained the issues we were seeing in his health and behavior. After just 6 weeks of care, we had a different child. We were stunned at the difference in his behavior. For the first time in two years, Greyson was happy! He was able to focus more and we witnessed him spending longer periods of time playing with particular toys or expressing an interest in sitting to color, paint and read. His rattled breathing disappeared after just a few visits and we said goodbye to the nebulizer! He has been fever and seizure free since we met Dr. D! It seemed too good to be true! Chiropractic care was our answer! It makes me excited every time a family member or friend comments on how happy Greyson seems these days. I simply smile and say Dr. D is our hero!
