7-Year-Old Girl with Multiple Diagnosis Finds Relief

My daughter (aged 7) has never fit into any descriptive box. She's been a bit all over the place, so any diagnosis was always half-hearted and advice from the doctors wasn't helpful at all. We have been through an Autism Spectrum diagnosis that was later revoked and replaced with ADHD and Sensory Processing Disorder. She exhibited attention and focusing issues, extreme frustration leading to meltdowns, total sensory overload at times, occasional aggression, and then issues centered around eating and going to the bathroom. I gave our pediatrician and specialists an entire year of trying things out on my daughter to fix her physical issues (encopresis and persistent recurring utis). I shudder to reflect back on the tests I allowed and the medicines I forced her to take in hopes that she would achieve wellness. After nearly a year, I decided to stop all visits to physicians and stick to my instinct and pursue only homeopathic remedies. For several months, I did this on my own and definitely saw some improvement in my daughter. However, it wasn't until we found Dr. D that the pieces came together. Dr. D's office has been a godsend! He has provided healing, support, and information galore! My daughter hasn't suffered from a uti since beginning chiropractic care, nor is she wetting the bed at night. Her encopresis continues to improve as well. She has found balance and peace emotionally. She is able to focus for longer stretches of time, and she is able to control her frustration. I am so proud of her progress, and I am grateful to Dr. D for allowing her system to clear up enough that she was able to achieve this tremendous amount of progress! - Jess Woods
